The Growing Tree, located at 11 13th Ave., in New Glarus, was opened in 2013. Child care centers throughout the country are struggling with attracting and retaining professional staffers in part due to the low wages they are provided.

Futures are bright for kids at The Growing Tree

Brooke Skidmore didn't have a childcare background when she opened The Growing Tree childcare center in New Glarus eight years ago. Skidmore, with a degree in art education, was struggling to find childcare options for her young daughters, so she and her brother Brandon Legler, who has a degree in Family Studies and Human Development, began planning to fill the need they saw in the community.

The state uses assessments that a child must meet before receiving services, which often means declining services until the child gets worse.

That can make it even more difficult for a child to overcome the obstacles they are facing, Skidmore said.

Early childhood professionals can help children succeed, however.

Ninety percent of brain development occurs before the age of 5.

"The quality of the relationships and experiences a child is exposed to greatly determines the rest of that child's life. The most important teacher a child will have is their early childcare teacher," she said.

That's one reason Skidmore advocates for higher wages for childcare professionals.

Local tourism agencies awarded state grants

Janesville Area Convention & Visitors Bureau, Main Street Monroe, Green County and New Glarus Chamber of Commerce were among dozens of tourism agencies throughout the state to be awarded grant dollars toward their efforts, Gov. Tony Evers announced last week.

Janesville Area Convention & Visitors Bureau is awarded $167,000, Green County, $40,650; Main Street Monroe, $11,032.10; and New Glarus Chamber of Commerce $112,673, as part of the $15 million in grants distributed for Destination Marketing Organizations (DMOs) throughout the state.

The investment is a part of the governor's more than $140 million American Rescue Plan Act (ARPA) fund investment in Wisconsin's tourism and entertainment industries, according to a press release from his office.

"Wisconsin's tourism industry was one of the first and hardest hit industries of the COVID-19 pandemic, but our local folks at DMOs statewide have been innovative, dedicated, and resilient, and it's because of them that this industry is bouncing back and better," Evers stated in the release.

"I am glad to be using these funds to support their good work, along with our more than $200 million investment in Wisconsin's tourism industry.

From the largest convention and visitor bureaus in Milwaukee and Wisconsin Dells to the smallest chambers of commerce in Pepin and Cassville, the $15 million investment will help continue to fuel our local recovery efforts and ensure those rebounds are felt statewide."

The Destination Marketing Organization Grant Program will help 120 local DMO organizations across the state expand on their work to attract regional, national, and international visitors to explore all that Wisconsin has to offer.

"Together with our local Destination Marketing Organizations, we are at a critical moment in the tourism recovery, and these funds will jumpstart Wisconsin's tourism recovery that will uplift local economies and hospitality workers," said Wisconsin Department of Tourism Secretary-designee Anne Sayers. "Wisconsin's $17.3 billion tourism industry is not just big fun, it's also big business."

Funded by the ARPA and administered by the Wisconsin Department of Administration (DOA) with guidance from the Wisconsin Department of Tourism, the Destination Marketing Organization Grant Program was designed to assist tourism, convention and events organizations that

Report shows 8% increase in fires from 2019 to 2020

The National Fire Protection Association has released findings from its latest "Fire Loss in the U.S." report, which shows that the total number of U.S. fires overall rose 8% from 2019 to 2020. While some year-to-year fluctuation is normal, this increase reflects a far from typical year due to the pandemic.

"In 2020, more people were working and studying at home, commuting far less, and spending more time socializing outside," said Lorraine Carli, vice president of Outreach and Advocacy at NFPA. "It appears that the fires followed these shifts."

According to the report, which provides a broad overview of how, when, and where U.S. fires occur and their impact on life and property, residential structure fires rose 5% from 2019 to 2020, while non-residential structure fires fell 8%. Highway vehicle fires fell 9%; outside and other fires rose 17%. Civilian deaths and injuries fell 6% and 8%, respectively.

Over the long-term, much progress has been made in reducing the U.S. fire problem. The estimated total of fires was 54% lower in 2020 than in 1980, while fire death and injury estimates were 46% and 50% lower, respectively, over the same period. Because the U.S. population has grown since 1980, population-based rates have dropped even more than the estimates have.

"Overall, we've seen significant declines in the total number of fires and fire deaths over the past 40 years. That's the good news," said Lorraine Carli, vice president of Outreach and Advocacy at NFPA. "At the same time, most of the reduction in reported fires and fire losses occurred more than a decade ago. There is still more work to do, particularly around home fires."

The report notes that less progress has been made in preventing fire deaths and injuries associated with reported home fires; three-quarters (74% of all U.S. fire deaths occur in homes. The rate of 7.2 deaths per 1,000 reported home fires was almost identical to the rate of 7.1 in 1980.

"While home fires are happening less often, when they do occur, people are struggling to escape safely," said Carli. "These findings reinforce the critical importance of better educating the public about how fast today's home fires grow and spread, how little time they have to escape from the time the smoke alarm sounds, and the know-how to use that time wisely in the event of a home fire."

Key findings from the report include the following:

Overall, local fire departments responded to an estimated 1,388,500 fires in 2020, resulting in 3,500 civilian deaths, 15,200 civilian injuries and $21.9 billion in direct property damage.

Every 23 seconds, a fire department in the United States responds to a fire somewhere in the nation.

A fire occurs in a structure at the rate of one every 64 seconds, and a home fire occurs every 89 seconds.

The death rate per 1,000 reported one- or two-family home fires was 16% higher than in 1980, while the comparable rate for apartment fires was 43% lower.

Sixty-four percent of all U.S. home fire deaths occurred in one- or two-family homes; the other 10% occurred in apartments or other multi-family housing.

Eighteen percent of fire deaths were caused by vehicle fires.

The National Fire Protection Association is a global self-funded nonprofit organization devoted to eliminating death, injury, property, and economic loss because of fire, electrical and related hazards. The association began its work to solve the fire problem in a young, industrialized nation in 1896 and has since become a global force known for advancing safety worldwide.

NFPA delivers information and knowledge through more than 325 consensus codes and standards, research, training, education, outreach, and advocacy; and by partnering with others who share an interest in furthering the NFPA mission. In celebration of its 125th Anniversary, NFPA will be hosting a Conference Series and other initiatives that reflect the association's steadfast commitment to advancing fire and life safety for the next 125 years and beyond.

economy," Skidmore said.

"Our economy is dependent on access to quality childcare; without it, parents can't work."

The pandemic has exacerbated the problem, as businesses everywhere struggle to find workers, often because of a lack of childcare.

Skidmore encourages community members to support childcare by contacting local and state representatives.

"Supporting early childcare is not a partisan issue -- almost 80% of constituents support policies to help the childcare profession," Skidmore said.

"For change to occur, we need to educate ourselves on how policymakers are voting and if they are listening to those they represent."

The Growing Tree is the second in a series of childcare centers profiled by the Green County Development Corporation.

John "Gof" Godfrey Thomson (center) of The Bank of New Glarus accepts his award from WBA President and CEO Rose Oswald Poels and WBA Board Chair Ken Thompson, president and CEO of Capitol Bank, Madison last month.

Local banker named Leader in Banking Excellence

Local banker John "Gof" Godfrey Thomson was recently honored by the Wisconsin Bankers Association for his excellence in banking, community service, and civic involvement.

A celebration was held on Oct. 29 at the WBA headquarters in Madison, where a Leaders in Banking Excellence Wall installation was on display featuring current and former honorees.

Five honorees for 2021 were added to the designation that was created last year and included a dozen inaugural honorees.

"Gof has made significant contributions to Wisconsin's banking industry and to the economic wellbeing of our state," Rose Oswald Poles, WBA president and CEO, stated in a press release.

"Part of what makes him an exceptional leader is that he has inspired others to succeed in their professions and in service to their communities."

Thomson worked for more than 30 years at The Bank of New Glarus, making lifelong connections, and positively impacting Wisconsin's banking industry.

He is a graduate of Grinnell College and received his Juris Doctor degree from the University of Minnesota.

He served in the U.S. Navy Reserves as a JAG officer, on the Board of Directors for the Independent Community Bankers of America (ICBA) and has been involved with many aspects of the Community Bankers of Wisconsin (CBW) and Wisconsin Bankers Association.

He also served as president of CBW from 1993-1994 and was named "Banker of the Year" by CBW in 1999.

Locally, he is active with the New Glarus Lions, the New Glarus Chamber of Commerce, the Wilhelm Tell Play, and Green County Development.

He has also served on the Clean Wisconsin Board for nearly 30 years.

Ron Schaaf, President & CEO of The Bank of New Glarus said Gof has been a great contributor to the community.

"We're very thankful to Gof for all his years of service to our bank as well as to our community," he said. "He certainly is a Leader in Banking Excellence."

The other 2021 Leaders in Banking Excellence Class included Jon Bernander, Bank of Wisconsin Dells; Robert Gorsuch, Oak Bank, Fitchburg; Mary L. Staudenmaier, The Stephenson National Bank & Trust (SNBT), Marinette; and Merlin E. Zitzner, Baraboo State Bank.

As the largest deposit bank in Green County, it offers a full range of financial products and services to its customers including personal banking, business banking and wealth management.

The Wisconsin Bankers Association (WBA) was founded in 1892 and is the state's largest financial industry trade association, representing more than 200 commercial banks and savings institutions, their branches, and more than 21,000 employees. The Association represents banks of all sizes in Wisconsin, and nearly 98 percent of banks in the state are WBA members.

A local couple was among several recipients honored last month by the Wisconsin Rural Schools Alliance (WiRSA) for their contributions in rural education.

Norm and Carol Aulabaugh were named Rural Community Partner of the Year in recognition of their donation of 75 acres to the Parkview School District. The couple was nominated by district administrator Steve Lutzke.

The Aulabaughs were among seven individuals and one organization to be honored at the rural schools conference Oct. 25 by the nonprofit organization dedicated to helping address challenges faced by rural school districts.

The Wisconsin Rural Schools Alliance was formed to help rural school districts address the unique issues that affect rural schools as they seek to achieve the highest quality education for every student.

Overhead at Orfordville Village Hall

The Orfordville Village Board met Nov. 8 for its regularly-scheduled monthly meeting. According to the unofficial minutes, the following items were discussed:

Proposal for building inspector services accepted

The Board approved a proposal for engineering services from General Engineering Company.

The company will provide residential and commercial building inspections and proposed permit fees.

Village Clerk Sherri Waage said she received two proposals - one from Char Martin and the other from General Engineering Company.

Char Martin is a former state inspector that now works for the City of Sun Prairie. Martin would do inspections on nights and weekends. Martin would also be on the village's payroll as she does not have liability insurance, according to the clerk.

General Engineering Company is based out of Portage and has many inspectors. Waage and Village President Gary Phillips met with representatives from General Engineering Company, including an inspector for the area.

Phillips said that General Engineering Company would not be part of the payroll as the company carries its own liability insurance.

Contracting General Engineering Company's services would ensure the village would always have someone available in the event that its designated inspector would not be available.

According to Phillips, the proposal also includes permit fees with a 10% increase for the village to maintain, meaning General Engineering Company keeps 90%.

General Engineering recommended that the Village have the county complete the initial zoning and setback review for permits for new construction and other permits that require setback review.

Developers agreement for West Brodhead Street in the works

The Board approved moving forward with a developer's agreement between the village and Carl and Marisa Voelkel for a portion of 702 W. Brodhead Street for a commercial business and storage sheds.

Carl Voelkel was present and told the Board that they reviewed the sample Developer Agreement and needed to make some changes.

Voelkel would like to complete the storage sheds first in the first year, and then the commercial building, depending on the business climate after the storage sheds are complete.

Voelkel added that it is common to complete a building within a 12-month period, adding developers would like to have the main commercial building built in two to three years.

Phillips explained that Voelkel would have to include both building plans in the state submittal for building plans so that the storm water evaluation could be completed.

Voelkel agreed and further explained that in order to secure financing, the bank would require developers to have committed renters for both the storage sheds and the commercial building.

Developers first intend on building storage sheds along the Highway 11 corridor, and then begin the main building project.

The main building plan would be to have two sections, one large section for a larger business and a smaller section for multiple tenants for smaller businesses.

Phillips and Trustee Jason Knox both stated their concern with the delay in the main commercial building project.

Voelkel said the big commercial building is part of the plan but he cannot guarantee when it will happen.

Phillips suggested that

Attorney Michael Oellerich create a Developers Agreement that will address the commercial building being built second, with provisions that will set parameters for the second building.

Economic Development Committee met Nov. 8

Members of the Economic Development Committee met Nov. 8 to learn about a promotional holiday project in the works, among other business-enhancing efforts.

Chairwoman Beth Schmidt presented information about a film she is working on with Cami Myers-Alstat to promote shopping locally during the holidays.

The pair started with 33 Feeds and The Sassy Farm Chicks, and showed the video to the committee.

Each retail business will have a video and musical photo featured. The videos will be posted on Facebook. Others to be featured include Poor Peddler, Kennedi Lemanne's, A Cut Above, and Molly's Creations.

DNR pheasant stocking increases hunting opportunities

Holiday pheasant stocking expands local state properties

The Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources recently announced the department will stock pheasant at 25 state properties in central and southern Wisconsin during the week of Dec. 20, 2021, to increase hunting opportunities throughout the holiday season.

The pheasant holiday stocking began in 2017 to provide pheasant hunters an additional opportunity to hunt during the holiday season. Five state properties were initially stocked in 2017 with another three added in 2018.

Pheasants are one of the most sought-after gamebirds in North America and because of continued interest and popularity among Wisconsin pheasant hunters, the DNR will stock 2,920 pheasants across 25 state properties over a two-day period during the week of Dec. 20. Pheasant season in Wisconsin runs until Jan. 9, 2022.

"We are excited to grow holiday stocking to 25 properties this year and offer more opportunities to hunt with family and friends," DNR State Game Farm Manager Kelly Maguire said. "The selected areas are located near population centers to provide accessible opportunities to as many holiday hunters as possible as well as areas that see high hunter use throughout the pheasant hunting season."

Properties to be stocked for the holiday season include:

- Albany Wildlife Area, Green County;
- Avoca Unit of the Lower Wisconsin Riverway, Iowa County;
- Avon Bottoms Wildlife Area, Rock County;
- Badfish Creek Wildlife Area, Dane County;
- Boscobel Unit - Lower Wisconsin State Riverway, Grant County;
- Brooklyn Wildlife Area, Dane and Green counties;
- Evansville Wildlife Area, Rock County;
- Footville Wildlife Area, Rock County;
- French Creek Wildlife Area, Columbia County;
- Goose Lake Wildlife Area, Dane County;
- Horicon Marsh Wildlife Area, Dodge and Fond du Lac counties;
- Jackson Marsh, Washington County;
- Jefferson Marsh Wildlife Area, Jefferson County;
- Kettle Moraine State Forest Southern Unit, Waukesha County;
- Lake Mills Wildlife Area, Jefferson County;
- Mazomanie Unit of Lower Wisconsin State Riverway, Dane County;
- Mud Lake Wildlife Area, Columbia County;
- Mud Lake Wildlife Area, Dodge County;
- Pine Island Wildlife Area, Columbia County;
- Richard Bong State Recreation Area, Kenosha County;
- Sauk Prairie State Recreation Area, Sauk County;
- Theresa Marsh Wildlife Area, Washington and Dodge counties;
- Vernon Wildlife Area,

The Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources will stock pheasant at 25 state properties in central and southern Wisconsin during the week of Dec. 20, to increase hunting opportunities throughout the holiday season.

- Waukesha County;
- Waterloo Wildlife Area, Jefferson County; and
 - Yellowstone Wildlife Area, Lafayette County.

Quality pheasant hunting opportunities exist throughout Wisconsin, according to the DNR, including wild pheasant hunting where suitable habitat exists and previously stocked public lands. All hunting regulations and bag limits apply through the season's end.

Hunters are required to purchase a 2021 Wisconsin pheasant stamp to pursue these birds. With stamp-funded revenue, the DNR creates and maintains grassland habitats required for pheasants to survive and reproduce year-round. For more information, view the DNR's 2021 combined hunting regulations at dnr.wi.gov.

Hunter safety

The DNR also reminds hunters to practice TAB-K while afield:

- T - Treat every firearm as if it is loaded
- A - Always point the muzzle in a safe direction
- B - Be certain of your target and what's beyond it
- K - Keep your finger outside the trigger guard until ready to shoot

In addition, the DNR reminds hunters to wear blaze orange while hunting to increase visibility. Blaze orange is required during open firearm deer seasons, including the holiday hunt select Farmland (Zone 2) counties from Dec. 24 to Jan. 1, 2022.

Where to hunt

Hunters can use the DNR's Fields and Forest Lands Interactive Gamebird Hunting Tool (FFLIGHT) to locate cover suitable for ruffed grouse and woodcock, managed dove fields and properties stocked with game farm pheasants.

FFLIGHT allows hunters to use aerial maps, topography and measuring tools to easily navigate and identify areas of interest and make their trips more productive and enjoyable.

Hunters should also check out the DNR's Hunt Wild Wisconsin mobile app to explore properties, regulations, document tracks and more.
